The Hospice Palliative Care Service

Nurse Maude provides a range of specialist community and palliative care services for people facing life limiting illnesses and their family/whānau living in the Canterbury District Health Board area.

All our services are free. Costs are met partially by the government and the remainder through the generosity of the community.

The Hospice

The hospice provides short term inpatient care (usually one to two weeks) for symptom management or care in the last days of life, if care at home is no longer possible.

Each of the 11 rooms in the hospice are comfortable, homely and have an ensuite and TV. Patients and families/whānau are welcome to visit prior to admission.

The hospice does not provide long-term care, but our staff can help patients and their family/whānau to consider the options for longer term care in a suitable residential care facility.

The hospice is a smoke-free environment.

Admission

Requests for admission can be made by any health professional involved in the care of the patient.

Our approach to care

Our approach is a team approach - hospice staff work together with district nurses, community based specialist palliative care nurses and general practitioners for continuity of care.

Our skilled and compassionate team are specially trained and experienced in palliative care to ensure the best quality of life for patients. We offer support to family/whānau and friends too.

We have our own hospice doctors, but patients are welcome to have their own GP to care for them or to share care with our medical team.

In addition to medical and nursing staff we have counsellors, a spiritual care worker, pharmacist, dietitian, physiotherapist, occupational therapist, needs assessor, social worker and Kaiāwhina.

Volunteers

Our clinical team is complemented by a large group of trained and dedicated volunteers who assist with hospitality and provide complementary therapy.

Family/whānau and friends

Family/whānau and friends are welcome to visit at any time and can stay overnight.

Children are welcome. Games, books and toys are available in the Whānau Room and there is a playground in the garden.

Pets are also welcome visitors providing someone takes care of them.

Tea/coffee and microwave facilities are available in the Whānau Room. Meals are only provided for patients but family/whānau are welcome to bring in their own food.

Informed choice and consent

Care is only given with patient consent. Informed consent is requested in writing following discussions at the first meeting. Patients may decline care at any time.

Patients will also be asked to complete a disclosure form to indicate who we can provide information to. This form can be altered at any time.

To help us support family/whānau during and after illness, we will ask for their contact details including names, addresses and phone numbers.

Safety

As patients are often frail and/or weak, they are at risk of falling. We aim to prevent falls without taking away independence and dignity, however, falls sometimes do happen.

We have found bedrails can increase the risk of injury so instead we offer alternatives such as using a very low bed or a sensor mat on the floor which alarms when it is stepped on and alerts the nursing staff.

If a patient requires constant supervision, family/whānau members may be asked to come and sit with them.
